The art of the cartoonist
It wants the Bush administration to agree that if they hit a dead end, they will support American calls for UN sanctions. And it wants the EU to raise Israel’s security fence and its support for Ariel Sharon’s pull out from Gaza. And it does not want the American embargo on China lifted.

The Bush administration has been looking for a way to resolve these competing interests. One of the things striking is how potent the anti-Israel/ pro-Palestinian sentiment is, even in America’s government. Even in America, in that America was the one country where people didn’t expect an anti-American government would come out of the war, America’s government was the one that came out of the war.
